Seacon Logistics: Spider in the web

Seacon Logistics is more than an average forwarder. If your concern is optimal control of the supply chain, Seacon wants to be your partner: door-to-door and continent-to-continent with the top added value, the highest efficiency level and the lowest possible cost. An important aspect in all this is the control of logistical costs. Seacon does this with ongoing innovation, and synergies with a global network of strategic partners.

"We design top efficiency distribution chains for your business: with warehousing, and transport by sea, air, road and rail, always selecting the best combination, with the right balance between cost and time, ensuring the best result," explains founder and CEO Hai Berden. As the supply chain manager, Seacon has centrally located inland terminals in Venlo, Born and Duisburg (D), which form an important link between you and your clients. These are trimodal container terminals providing rapid and reliable links between seaports and the European hinterland.

Seacon handles groupage and complete loads to all destinations worldwide. Daily scheduled services to and from Great-Britain, Ireland, Scandinavia and Central/Eastern Europe with high frequency and rapid transit times. Offering the options of accompanied trailer transport or container traffic by rail and water.

Central warehousing including value added services for all your cargo storage. Seacon then delivers to your client's front door, throughout Europe. A specialized customs service department is an essential part of the logistical services. The logistical engineers design and implement logistical systems that are custom-made for your organization.

Operating this way, Seacon Logistics can manage the total logistic chain based on door-to-door transport.

"Seacon demonstrates its commitment to social responsibility, in the community, by way of funding and sponsoring," says Hai Berden. This is one of the reasons why he is the chairman of the successful VVV-Venlo soccer team.
